Qu Yongzhong

Qu Yongzhong is from Weihai, Shandong, China. He graduated from Shandong Normal University and the Graduate School of the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences. In the late 1970s, he began studying calligraphy under the renowned calligrapher Wang Zhongwu, and later received dedicated guidance from Wei Qihou and Zhu Xueda. In the 1990s, he headed the Shandong Provincial Art Authentication Committee and served on several occasions on the provincial committee evaluating senior professional qualifications in calligraphy, painting and fine arts. He worked in cultural and arts organizations in Shandong for nearly 30 years before moving to Canada in 2003.

Artist biography supplied by the organizer.

Artistic Practice and Cultural Outreach

Qu Yongzhong has devoted more than 50 years to calligraphy practice and research. An accomplished art connoisseur, he has published numerous calligraphy works and articles on art. His works have been exhibited in many countries and regions and collected by museums, galleries, arts centres, libraries, government institutions, political figures in China and Canada, and other prominent individuals.

His biography and works appear in more than 20 major art reference volumes, including Ink Works by Contemporary Chinese Masters of Calligraphy, Collected Works of Contemporary Chinese Masters of Calligraphy and Painting, A Panorama of Chinese Calligraphy and Seal-Carving Art, Dictionary of Modern Artists of the World, and A Collection of One Hundred Calligraphers and Painters in North America.

His works have received more than ten awards in Chinese and international calligraphy and painting competitions. In 1992, his running-script calligraphy won second prize in the adult category of the Hope Cup National Calligraphy and Painting Competition. In 1993, China Central Television and several international arts organizations awarded him the title of Outstanding Artist of the World. In 2002, his zhangcao (clerical cursive) calligraphy received the Qunxing Award from China's Ministry of Culture. In 2016, he received an Outstanding Art Award from Canada's federal multiculturalism department.

For many years, Qu has actively promoted traditional Chinese culture overseas and supported cultural activities for the public good. Through online and in-person exhibitions, television features, newspaper and online columns devoted to calligraphy and painting, short calligraphy videos, public online platforms, and his own internet accounts, he has shared traditional Chinese calligraphy and painting across North America and around the world, making a positive social contribution.

He currently holds the title of “International Cultural Role Model” artist with the United Nations World Intangible Cultural Heritage Protection Foundation; Lifetime Honorary President of the Canadian Chinese Arts Association; Art Advisor to the Canadian Academy of Chinese Calligraphy and Painting; Co-founding President of the Canadian Chinese Calligraphy and Painting Arts Federation; and Artistic Director of the Canada-China Cultural and Educational Exchange Centre.

TEXT OF THE WORK / ENGLISH TRANSLATION

A waning moon hangs above sparse paulownias;
The water clock falls silent, and all is still.
Who sees the recluse wandering alone,
An elusive shadow of a solitary wild goose?
Startled, it rises, then turns its head;
Its sorrow no one understands.
It searches every cold branch, yet will not settle;
The lonely sandbar lies in the cold.

TEXT OF THE WORK / ENGLISH TRANSLATION

The wind is fierce, the sky high; apes cry mournfully.
 Above clear islets and white sand, birds wheel.
 Boundless leaves rustle as they fall;
 The endless Yangtze rolls onward.
 Far from home, grieving autumn, I am ever a guest;
 Ill through my life, I climb the terrace alone.
 Hardship and bitter regret have thickened my frosty hair;
 Worn down, I have lately set aside my cup of cloudy wine.

TEXT OF THE WORK / ENGLISH TRANSLATION

Beyond the farewell pavilion, beside the ancient road,
Fragrant green grass stretches to the sky.
The evening breeze brushes the willows; flute notes fade;
Beyond the sunset, mountain follows mountain.
At the ends of heaven and the corners of the earth,
Close friends are scattered, many lost.
A jug of cloudy wine exhausts our remaining joy;
Tonight, dreams of parting will be cold.

TEXT OF THE WORK / ENGLISH TRANSLATION

At dawn, my eyes turn toward the mountains;
A vast sea surges among the clouds.
Jade-like dew drips from cold trees;
Drifting clouds conceal the emerald cliffs.
I long to cast a fishing line far out,
And dare to angle where cranes roam at ease.
It seems a battle array of the Milky Way,
Divine troops advancing to unbroken drums.

TEXT OF THE WORK / ENGLISH TRANSLATION

In the distance, autumn mountains glow in red and orange clouds;

Along a narrow path and stone steps stand two or three homes.

Frost sends red leaves flying across the land of maples;
Everywhere, flowers of the second lunar month seem to bloom.

TEXT OF THE WORK / ENGLISH TRANSLATION

Red leaves, a green window, a tower overlooking water;
Cold mountains and evening light deepen into stillness.
Pouring tea, I ask my guest for news of home;
Raising wine, I urge a traveller to sing.
Meeting a kindred spirit, I regret only that we met so late;
Having crossed vast seas, let us speak no more of sorrow.
The Peach Blossom Land is distant, but the scent of ink is near;
Wild geese cry through the frost across the Nine Provinces.

TEXT OF THE WORK / ENGLISH TRANSLATION

Beyond worldly cares, a cottage opens to a broad sweep of mountains;

Ink left before the hall rests in seclusion across the water.

With strong tea, all vexing cares are forgotten;

With good wine, who thinks of earning daily bread?

Green mountains outside deepen longing for home;

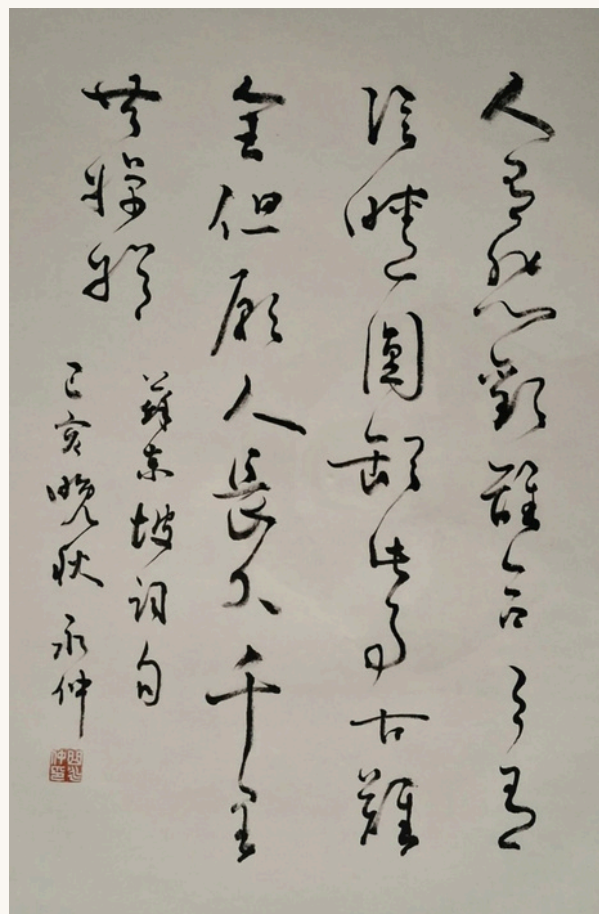

Red maples by the window add to a traveller's sorrow.

Once parted from our homeland, we are far away at the world's edge;

When we meet, why must we share a boat of departure?

TEXT OF THE WORK / ENGLISH TRANSLATION

People know sorrow and joy, parting and reunion;
The moon is veiled or bright, waxing or waning.
Since ancient times, such things have never been perfect.
May we both live long,
And share the moon's beauty, though a thousand miles apart.
